What to do if you still have concerns that your child is not talking well for his/her age:

- Try not to feel anxious. Children learning more than one language sometimes start speaking a bit later than children only learning English, but they normally catch up.

- If your child is under five, speak to your Health Visitor. They can give you advice or direct you to a ‘Play and Talk’ session to speak informally with a Speech and Language Therapist.

- Contact Ealing Speech and Language Therapy service on:

  020 8825 8856

A health programme devised by NHS Southwark Speech and Language Therapy team
Talk to your child in your strongest language(s). This will provide a solid foundation upon which additional languages can be learnt.

Learning more than one language is good for general learning.

Enjoy your language, it is important for your social and cultural identity.

Try to let your child have times when he/she can play with other children who speak your language.

Don’t be frightened to use your language in public.

Make ‘Special Time’ for you and your child when you can play together. Get rid of any distractions, e.g. TV, radio, phone etc, and watch to see what your child does with the toys. Give words for what your child is doing.

If your child prefers to use English words, you can still respond and repeat back what they have said in your own language.

It is ok to use more than one language if you speak more than one confidently.

Sing nursery rhymes and songs. This helps to develop children’s early language skills.

Talk about books with your child and make up stories. Your local library will be able to help you find books in different languages.

Talk to your child about what is happening during the day, e.g. at bath time, when shopping, cleaning etc. You can talk to your child, even when they are too little to understand or talk back to you.

Talk about things your child shows an interest in. You will then both be focusing on the same things. This will help your child to understand what you are saying.

Look at your child as you talk. This helps him/her to see your facial expression and how you form words.

Give lots of opportunities and time for your child to respond to you, e.g. you might say something and they might babble back or giggle. Answer your baby’s noises or babble.

Your home language is important. It is part of you and your child’s identity. So keep this alive:

Try to let your child have times when he/she can play with other children who speak your language.

Don’t be frightened to use your language in public.

Make sure your child knows the different names of languages he/she speaks.

Help your child to feel proud of their language/s. This will help them develop a strong cultural identity.

So, use your language to:

- Sing nursery rhymes and songs. This helps to develop children’s early language skills.
- Talk about books with your child and make up stories. Your local library will be able to help you find books in different languages.
- Talk to your child about what is happening during the day, e.g. at bath time, when shopping, cleaning etc. You can talk to your child, even when they are too little to understand or talk back to you.
- Talk about things your child shows an interest in. You will then both be focusing on the same things. This will help your child to understand what you are saying.